PUBLIC WORKS NOTES

WDL D Sewage plant daily flows

Our fuel operating cost as of August 1st has decreased by $7,581.48 from this time in 2014.

We had an electric motor go bad at the Tamarack pump station # 11 in July. This is a Smith & Loveless can pump station and the availability of a replacement motor from the manufacturer was 10-12 weeks out.

I have learned over the years that this kind of availability problem for major replacement parts is getting more and more common and it is important to have back up parts on hand. We had the bad motor rebuilt at Columbia Electric Corp. in Poynette at a cost of $2,319.70 and was a week to complete. The cost of a new motor for this pump station from Smith & Loveless is $5,000. We found a used Smith & Loveless backup motor on E-bay for $250.00 and now have it at our shop.

Also this month we will be replacing the Fairbanks Morse pumps at Lift station # 7. This is one of two pump stations that pumps sewage across the river to the sewage plant. These pumps are 15 years old now and have reached the end of their service life.

Pump # 1 has worn a leak in the volute and has been off line since December of 2014. Again no one keeps pumps of this size in stock and I was told in December of 2104 the lead time to get them was 16-18 weeks. I have just been notified they will be shipped here the week of 9/2. Seven months after placing the order !

WRWA OPPOSES BUDGET PROVISIONS ON EXTENSION OF SERVICES, SUPPORTS PRE-VAILING WAGE REFORM FOR MUNICIPALITIES

The Wisconsin Rural Water Association (WRWA) joined various other statewide organizations on Tuesday in asking for legislative support for initiatives on behalf of its membership. This included removing budget provisions requiring municipalities to provide water & wastewater services outside their jurisdictional limits in certain circumstances, and supporting a compromise prevailing wage proposal that includes exemptions for municipal projects. HOW MUCH WATER SHOULD YOU DRINK EVERY DAY TO STAY HEALTHY AND HYDRATED?

With a heat wave gripping much of the country, many people are guzzling more water than usual to try to stay cool and hydrated. The convention wisdom says we should be downing eight glasses of water a day. But that number isn't based on any scientific studies, and doctors say it's not necessarily the best advice. A new article published in the Harvard Health Letter recommends drinking 30 to 50 ounces a day, an amount equal to about four to six glasses of water. Drinking enough water is important to carry nutrients to your cells, flush bacteria from your system and prevent dehydration, especially during hot summer months when we lose more fluids through sweat. People who are getting a lot of exercise, or women who are pregnant or breastfeeding, may need more.
